Tensions Without Warfare

Duskara's disagreements are real. People argue fiercely about resources, culture, philosophy, and justice. Emotions run high during resource crises or when personal tragedy intersects with principle. But eight centuries of learning that violence is suicidal have created a society where tensions are managed, debated, and occasionally painfully resolved—but not through warfare. Conflict exists; warfare does not.

---

Revision #5
Created 2025-11-28 14:44:17 UTC by zeruhur
Updated 2025-11-28 15:08:56 UTC by zeruhur