Overview

The Compendium describes how Duskara works. This Gazetteer says where things are. It gives every named place a position, a name, and a short entry, so that distances and travel times agree across the stories, the games and the lore.

Each entry carries a status:

- Canon: the place appears in the Compendium or in a published story, or it had a profile in worldbuilding/ before this Gazetteer replaced those profiles.
- Proposed: the place is new in this Gazetteer and waits for confirmation. No entry has this status at present.

The geodata folder beside this file holds the maps and the data made from this Gazetteer: the strip map, the terrain, the climate and the biomes. They are canon at the scale of the maps, which is 2 kilometers.
